EXHIBIT SPACES & CASES

Throughout the Anderson Academic Commons (AAC) there are exhibition spaces of various sizes and foot traffic. Each space can accommodate 2D images and 3D objects. Spaces and cases are subject to availability.

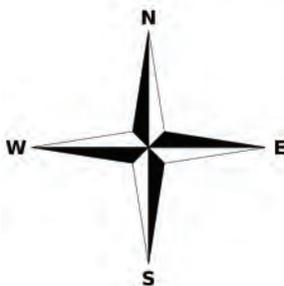

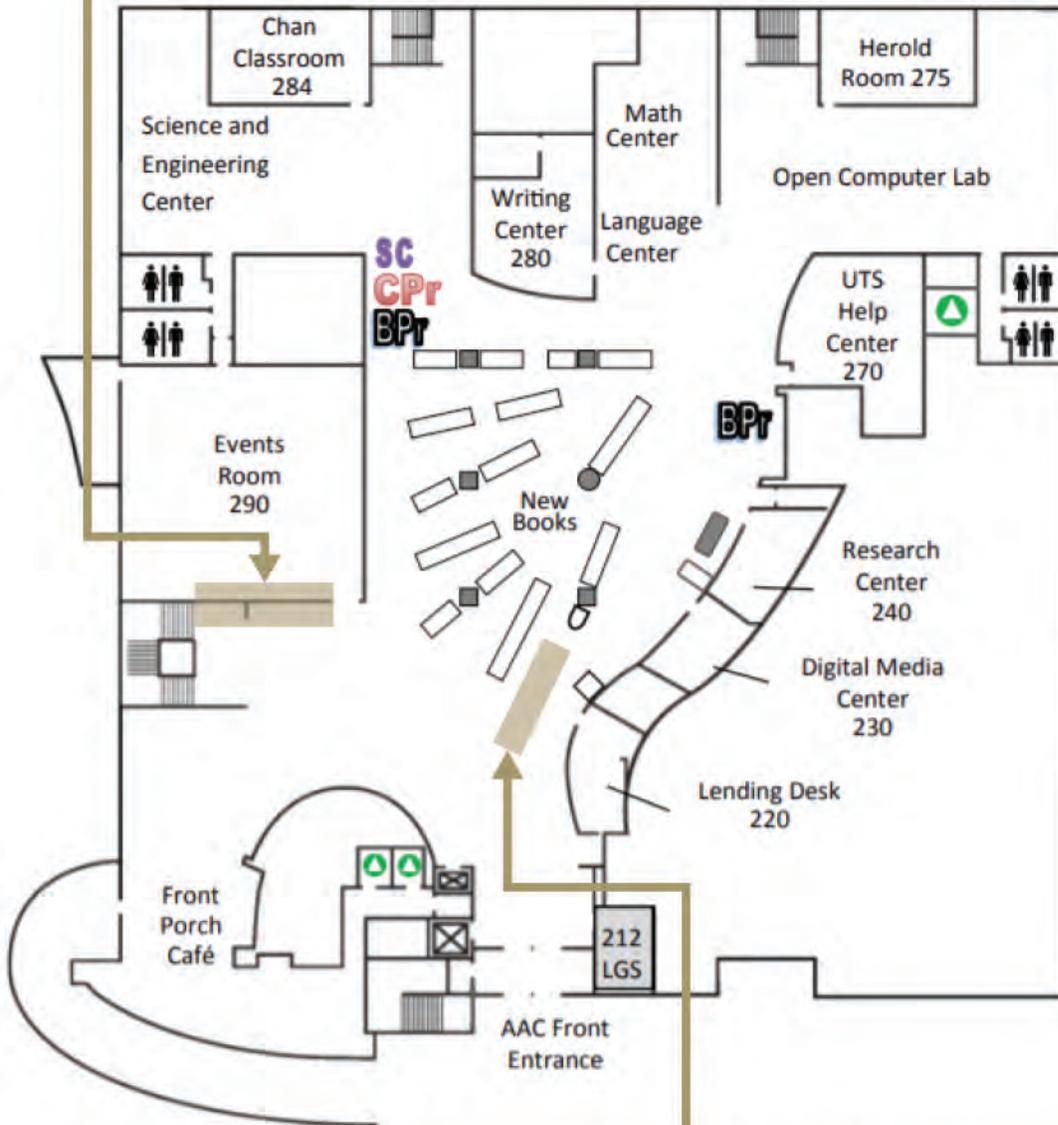

Each exhibit space has its own asset. For example, the built-in cases outside of Special Events Room 290 will be viewed by faculty, staff, students, and community who attend event held in that room. Also, it is adjacent to the main stairwell. The walls outside of the Dean's Suite have the advantage of being seen by the people coming and going from the Dean's Suite. This space is also one of the few exhibition spaces in the AAC that is the most gallery-like. The three walls and the curved wall can be used to make cohesive exhibits. The Loft Walls outside of AAC 340 are the most popular and most frequently used exhibition space. This space has a lot of student foot traffic and it is a popular study space. Each of the exhibit spaces throughout the AAC are best used for different exhibits with different goals. To find out more about these spaces, please contact the Manager of Exhibitions & Programs who works alongside Special Collections & Archives.

To inquire about exhibiting at the AAC please contact the Manager of Exhibitions & Programs. He/She can provide more information and answer any questions you may have. Every exhibit requires a proposal be submitted and approved by the Exhibits Committee. You can propose a complete, curated exhibit to be installed, or you can work with the Manager of Exhibitions & Programs to develop an exhibit to meet your goals.
